The Social Foundation Feeding Hopes María Fortaleza, an agency legally constituted according to Colombian regulations, develops projects focused on improving the quality of life of the vulnerable, displaced and indigenous population present in the southwestern Colombia.

The foundation was created in 2010, with the purpose of supporting vulnerable families of the municipality through entrepreneurship projects, especially women entrepreneurs, head of households, who have been victims of the scourge of violence, who many times despite their initiative and efforts have been limited in achieving their goals because of a lack of economic resources.

Many people have benefited from the programs: Prevention and Treatment against Psychoactive Substances.

Wake up Young. Support for the implementation of cultural projects. Support for the Unemployed. Creation of the Sports Training School "Real Santiago", as a strategy of motivation and good use of the free time of the Santiagueños children; Among others.

The Foundation's task of convening groups of children, young people, head mothers and adults, seeking solutions to social problems, which have stigmatized these population sectors.

The problem of displacement has made the Municipality of Santiago Putumayo, a recipient of families suffering this scourge; These people when they see each other poor settle in the most humble neighborhoods or settlement sites and begin to survive after emergency aid with informal economy activities and begging. Youth swaths (on which there are no support actions to overcome their generational and cultural uprooting), roam the streets of the Municipality, often with serious risks of psychoactive substance use and linkage to crime carried out by reaction, by the search for strong adventures or by necessity.

It is precisely these factors that lead to the different members of the Foundation working on care programs, that they can have sufficient coverage and quality to meet the basic needs of the inhabitants of the Putumayense community.
